LONGEVITY.

He sot at his door one summer eve,
And smoked his pipe with the best ez a sir'
Of one whom nothing has power to please—
Whose life itself is a burden to bear.

His hair was white as the silv'ry caps
That tip the toss on the ocean's blue;
His form was bent, 'neath the weight of years—
But just how many nobody knew.

The babe he saw in its mother's arms,
Was a woman now, and ev'ry night
To her children's children she told the tale
Of the man whose hair was always white.

For e'en the oldest inhabitant
(And one who never spoke aught but truth)
Declared that this man was bent and gray
When he, himself, was a careless youth.

The wonder grew—it had leaped its bound,
If only, by chance, had let in the sun;
"He wrote for a magazine in his youth,

A SUGAR CAMP IDYL.

"Sit down here and I will tell you a story," said Lijh Pitkins, moving an empty nail keg into place before the blazing fire of pine and beech that glowed under the sap pans.

It was Fast day morning, and sap must be boiled on these days as well as on any other day when sap will run. The Sunday question is a poser to many a conscientious church goer when the spring sunshine fills the veins of the sugar maples.

"You wouldn't s'pose we had catamounts here in these woods, would you?"

"No, I should hope not."

"Are there any catamounts prowling around at this season of the year?" I asked. And the great trees seemed to me to bend their leafless twigs in the breeze as if the very question startled them. How still they stood in the lovely air! "Now, you city feller, you needn't get your heart in your throat. 'Tain't very often that we see them. Besides, you are 'spected to spend the night with me follin', and you do not want to get yourself so you can't sleep on the soft side of a pine board, and a good buffalo and sheepskin robe by and by."

"Go on, sit down beside me and let us have your wild beast tragedy, within five hours' ride of Boston, if you have got one."

"You probably remember the old red school-house as you come over the brow of the hill. Well, it was two whiteas ago that one of the sweetest of all girls kept school over there. Her father was a soldier, and major of one of our regiments, and my father and Joe were with him in the war. He died, and she had to go and keep school for a living. Well, she kept our school. Call her Lizzie Brown, though that ain't her name," and the big fellow laughed in his sleeve as he spoke with a sort of gleaming pleasure at the mere hint of what her real name might now be. My sensibilities were too near frozen, or I might have seen through a ladder at that moment, to have guessed what her name really was now. Lijh sat pensive for a moment, then I said:

"Well, she kept the school?"

"Yes, God bless her. It was the first winter I was out. I run the farm, foddered and snow-plowed, and helped father all that winter he was sick. I began to feel myself a man. I wished I had a farm of my own and was settled down on it. At any rate, I knew I would have no more schoolin', and I worked hard all that winter."

"And you took Miss Brown sleigh-riding frequently. I have no doubt, with that smart colt of yours, and that fine Portland sleigh. Perhaps that was better than sitting on the back seats over arithmetic with her to help you."

"Well, now, you hold on; I am tellin' this story. As I was sayin', I was out of school," and he smirked all around with his big cowhide boots in the sawdust in front of him thoughtfully a moment, and then went on. "It was about the first of April, when the sap began to run, and that was about the time that the folks in our district were havin' a spellin' match with the district folks over on Knobb's Hill. Miss Brown was very anxious that our school should come out ahead and she made great preparations. She kept the boys and girls after hours to train them, and they all loved her well enough to stay. I told her to always let me know when she was kept late, because I wanted to come over with my mare, that sorrel, you know, that I showed you standing in the further stall, and my new sleigh. Yes, you were right. It was a Portland sleigh, and father said I was a fool for buying it, but I didn't think so. I didn't want Jim Southworth to come around with his colt after her, see? Speaking of catamounts, I knew that wasn't the worst, for I had seen tracks of bears in the mountains when we had a light sugar snow. No doubt the varmints came over from Canada. Bears are nothing in these parts. We don't mind them in the summer, but in spring all this sort of critter gets hungry and live on sheep or any thing they can get. Now, you wouldn't believe it so near to Boston, would you? You would not believe that right here in this sugar camp that I had my dog Snip tied one night when I went down home, because there wasn't any sap that day, and I had nothing to boil. When I came back to the morning, there was the chain, but no Snip. Well, along the very day of the spellin' match was to come off I had a sort of gatherin' to put in over near the school house. The sun was shinin' and we had a lot of new tin buckets, and they gleamed from the trees so that they made the hillside look like a great silver mine. I felt pretty good. My heart was as light as a feather, because I knew I had the girl's heart. She got on the ox sled with me, and rode round a few turns. We talked about the spellin' match, and I was sorry I could not come in, because I wanted to see her school whip that other deestrict, and I knew it would. I tell ye, my sap yoke was nothin' on my shoulders that afternoon. We fetched up round here at the shanty, and I sugared off a bit that I had intended to make into cakes for her; and she ate it, lookin' her pretty self sweeter 'n the sugar.

"That top spoon, up there, is the very one she used, I will guarantee," I said, as I pointed to a whittled shingle, hung up high on the side of the shanty, with a bit of yellow worsted ravelled out of his tippet tied around its shank, and underneath it was scrawled in charcoal: "Fast day, 1886."

The big fellow would have blushed, but that the bronze face painted by the March winds, made his honest, hearty features incapable of deeper hues.

"Well, I could not get over to the spellin' match, as it was such good sap weather, after she went back, and sugar was twenty-five cents a pound that season. I kept thinkin' I would go about breakin' up time; but if I didn't forget myself for business. I s'pose I ain't the first man that has let his wish to save some pesky property get between him and his lady love. I kept thinking I would get the syrup down so as I could leave it long enough to run over just about the time they got through which was about midnight."

"I suppose that other fellow, Southworth, was there with his colt and sleigh to take your Dulcinea home," I put in.

"You hit it exactly! And I was a fool too. I s'posed actually that she would rather walk home with me than to drive home with him. That's the conceit of a lover, but as I was a hard worker and he was a lazy fellow livin' on his old father, and lettin' him work his sugar orchard all that season, I thought she would see through things. Hadn't a girl ought to consider such things as that?"

"Yes, but girls like attention, you know. You can not win a fair lady without putting yourself out some," I replied.

"You are right. But, howsomever, I got over just as they were breaking up, and I was all in my working clothes, too, and I had on my long woolen frock, for it was rather frosty, and my pant legs were tucked in my boots. I thought she would consider that, and not be ashamed of me."

"But a young man must pay his lady love some little compliment by slicking up when he goes to see her."

"Now, you be still," he said, biting his lip. "Of course I got to the schoolhouse just as Joe Southworth drove up. His colt was dancin' and standin' straight on his hind legs, and he looked mighty pretty. The boys were just pourin' out and hurrahin', for we had got the victory. I just strode up by Southworth, scowlin' at him as I went by, and walked right up to Miss Brown just as she came out of the school-house door. O, wasn't she pretty, all flushed with the trouncin' she'd give Knobb's Hall. 'Good evening, Miss Brown, shall I walk home with you?' said I. She beaued on me as she always beams on every body to this day, and then she says: 'Why Elisha, Mr. Southworth has invited me to ride home with him.' I said not another word, but just tumbled back over the snow, and threw my leg over that rail fence, and just legged it towards this 'ere sugar camp. I heard Southworth's bells jingling down the highway and I went on my lonely journey. I was mighty mad. I sat down here on this very seat. I had not been in the camp more than three minutes when I heard the yow of a catamount. I just wished the creeter would eat me. I felt so pesky mean, and I knew I would sour on a stomach of a catamount. Well, as the yow-yow continued, I took the rifle out of the stock up there and put off out through the woods determined to shoot myself or the animal. And, zounds! if I did not see down there at the turn of the road Southworth's sleigh all smashed to smithereens! And the next minute I saw the catamount right up there ugh a hemlock tree all crouching down! But where was the girl? My blood got cold. Now, a fellow used to getting up stories could make this into a long story, but I will only tell you it in a word. Well, that moment I heard a pretty voice cry, 'Elishuh, Elishuh, quick!' It was my lady, who was sittin' on a pile of buffalo robes all crouched down in terror. Whether the beast would have touched the angel or not, I don't know. Well, I just fired at that beast and he dropped in a heap in no time."

"O, I see," said I. "That is the skin you have got in your best room down to the farm-house."

"You are right," he replied.

"And you and Miss Brown walked back to the sugar camp that night, and no wonder you let the sap burn for the sake of walking to your father's house with her, and really she has not got nuwny from your father's house to this day."

"Well, now, you are about right. She is the pretty woman that got our good breakfast this morning. See?"—Emory J. Haynes in Boston Globe.

The Women! God Bless Them!

What would the world be without women? Our mothers, our sisters and our wives—what would there be without them in life worth living? And yet whom do we neglect so cruelly? Our horses and our cattle are carefully sheltered and fed, and their first symptoms of ailing given quick attention. But our best friends among the gentler sex grow thin and pale before our very eyes, and because they do not complain we fail to notice it. Oh! let the mist fall from our eyes and let us realize how weak and fragile is woman, and how zealous we should be in their behalf when it comes to a question of health. Let us remember that for thin, pale, wan looking women Dr. John Bull's Sarsaparilla is just their need. It will make their cheeks rosy and they will grow in strength and flesh.—Gainesville Advocate.

GAMBLING AND BURGLING.

Both Are the Expression of a Desire to Grow Rich Without Work.

Gambling and burgling always occupy a good deal of public attention during the course of a year. There is not a very obvious connection between the two, yet the subtle moralist may find an association. Both are pursuits of men who ought to be otherwise, and more profitably, engaged. Both are the expressions of a desire to acquire riches at one stroke—or, at the most, two strokes—and to avoid the monotony of continuous labor. And both are the results of radical misconceptions on the part of the individual practitioners.

Nobody ever gets rich by gambling; but it is open to demonstration that, if the same amount of skill, of cerebral energy, of mental dexterity and of acute perception were expended in productive work of some kind as is expended on games of chance, the rewards would be substantial and certain. Again, the burglar who burgles on a large scale is playing against tearful odds, and is certain to come to grief sooner or later; while, if he burgles on a small scale, he can but snatch a precarious and insignificant pittance, considerably below what he might easily earn by legitimate industry in lawful hours.

There is, perhaps, a charm of excitement in burglary which fascinates the professional outlaw, even as the excitement of the turf or of cards enthralls the professional gambler. But to take a plain, practical view of both pursuits, and one apart altogether from the ethics of the matter, is to lead one to the conclusion that neither game is worth the candle.

The law, of course, takes other views of both. The burglar indulges in his exciting career at the expense of the community, and injures every body, including himself. The gambler indulges in his habitual excitement without injuring directly any body but himself and those dependent on him, who, from a social point of view, may be regarded as part of himself. The burglar, therefore, is objective in his existence; the gambler, subjective. To put it otherwise, the burglar is a common enemy, and the gambler nobody's enemy but his own.

The great fact which the community has to consider, and the law to provide for, is that the burglar is one who is in permanent rebellion against society, and is, by the very nature of his employment, both degraded and desperate. And this we are compelled to assume, in spite of Mr. W. S. Gilbert's humorous theory that—

When the enterprising burglar's not a-burgling,
When the cut-throat isn't occupied in crime
He loves to hear the little brook a-gurgling,
And listen to the merry village chime.

TORRENS' LAND ACT.

A Needed Change in Passing Deeds to Real Estate.

We hear a great deal about the Australian ballot act, but why do none of our legislators turn their attention to the Australian land act? No one acquainted with the history of England's great colonies in the South Pacific will deny that Australia's prosperity is much more due to the last-named measure than to the other.

The system of land transfer, inseparably associated with the name of Torrens, and now adopted not only throughout Australia, but also in New Zealand, carries out the complete assimilation of real estate to personal property, recommended twenty-four years ago by Mr. David Dudley Field, one of the commissioners appointed to frame a civil code for the State of New York. Fourteen years ago the capital features of the Torrens act were outlined in the New York Sun, with the result that there have since been established two Title Guarantee Companies in the City of New York and one in New Jersey. But in the Australian colonies the titles to real estate are searched and insured, not by private companies, which may become bankrupt, but by the commonwealth.

Throughout Australia you may transfer or mortgage a piece of reality as easily, as quickly and almost as cheaply as you can negotiate a promissory note or sell a government bond. The titles to all the real estate in an Australian colony have been investigated and registered, and are now guaranteed by the State. The registration officers are almost as numerous and accessible as the post-offices, and for a small fee, ranging from a few pence in Victoria to a few shillings in New Zealand, you may sell or mortgage real estate by an endorsement on the back of a certificate of title, the endorsement being countersigned by a registrar.

Think what such a saving of time and pecuniary outlay means to the great majority of citizens, who are either poor or possess only moderate means! Lord Brougham said that the work performed by Torrens was the greatest reform of which law was susceptible. More than once it has been proposed to bring about a similar state of things in England, but the innovation has been resisted by the large body of lawyers who live by conveyancing and litigation about titles. It has been said that in a long-settled country, where the chain of title was both long and intricate, the State could not safely confront the risk of wholesale guarantees. If private companies can do it—and they are doing it daily in New York City—why can not the State?

Undoubtedly the Australian system of land transfer can be introduced most easily and cheaply in the Territories of the United States, where real estate can have passed through only a few hands. What an opportunity, for instance, would a well-informed man have had in the conventions which lately framed constitutions for the new States of North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana and Washington! What an impulse would have been given to the prosperity of these communities, and what a stimulus to emigration, had a fundamental law been passed and published to the world, enacting that within their limits real estate should be transferred and mortgaged as quickly and well-nigh as cheaply as personal property! Why was such an occasion missed? Was it because knowledge and brains were wanted?—N. Y. Ledger.

We moved here recently and the druggist said he didn't have any Dr. Bull's Worm Destroyers, but when I said I wouldn't have any other, he said he would get some in a few days, and so he did. I know what Dr. Bull's Worm Destroyers will do, and will not give my children any other. —Mrs. J. D. Blair, Burton, Cal.

The fashion editor of a frontier paper, about the time of an Indian scare, said he was sorry to observe that whoops were coming in again.—Texas Sifting.

A DUTY TO YOURSELF.

THE EVILS OF CREDIT.

The System a Necessity Years Ago But a Danger at the Present Time.

It would be utterly unfair and unjust to suppose that the developments in two cases of insolvency now engaging the attention of the courts in this city represent the general or prevailing state of commercial morals here or elsewhere. Within a few months, nevertheless, there have been other revelations of gross dishonesty and outrageous plotting by business men to defraud creditors, and such instances are becoming so frequent that the credit-giving section of the mercantile community would be clearly justified in establishing for its own protection a much more stringent system in lieu of the dispensation of generous confidence which so often entails disastrous loss.

There is not much risk of error in the guess that half of the credits now given to retail dealers and others have no justifiable or substantial basis. In the hot competition for trade risks little less than desperate are taken, and men without real assets or established character are permitted to become debtors, and assisted to engage in business in rivalry with safe and responsible traders. The whole community suffers from this recklessness, for in the inevitable ultimate overing up of profit and loss the cash to balance is always extorted from the public. It may be true that credit-givers are not always able to obtain trustworthy information concerning the character and responsibility of those who seek their favors; but in majority of instances frauds are imposed upon them by fellows having the peculiarities of the confidence operator, and these are so manifest that failure to detect them argues deplorable ignorance of human nature.

The credit system was doubtless a necessary incident of business years ago, when capital was scarce all over the country and wholly insufficient for the wants of trade. There is no such scarcity now, and large and small capitalists are constantly seeking without being able to find safe and moderately remunerative employment for their accumulations and savings. If plausible, but impecunious and irresponsible adventurers, of the class whose failures bring reproach upon the commercial community, could be banished from the lines of trade they infest, their places might be readily filled by men able to do business on their own capital. Jobbers, wholesalers and manufacturers would benefit themselves and all honest people by revising their methods and bringing the trade of the country reasonably near the cash basis. The existing credit system offers too much temptation and encouragement to dishonesty.—Chicago Globe.

A Shooting Bee.

LITTLE ROCK, ARK., April 7.—Particulars of a drunken row and shooting affray at a country dance, in which two men were killed outright, have been received here from Salem, Fulton county. The row grew out of a difference between William Wright and W. P. Rogers, both claiming the right to dance in a certain round. While the dispute was at its hottest, some one from the outside fired a pistol in the dark, and, thereupon, Wright and Rodgers drew their weapons and began firing at each other. While the several shots were being exchanged, some of Rodgers' friends fired a shot at Wright, which entered his back about four inches to the left of his spine, just below the shoulder. He fell to the floor, and called to his friends that he had been murdered.

At this juncture Rodgers started to leave the room, but was hit by a shot fired from the outside, the ball entering his abdomen near the navel. He managed to get outside, where he was taken in charge and carried to his home, where he expired a few moments later. Wright will also die.

None of the parties interested have been arrested, and, indeed, it appears that the outside parties who did part of the shooting are unknown.

Recoinage Of Silver.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—House Committee on Coinage, Weights and Measures to-day authorized a favorable report on a bill for the recoinage of the subsidiary coins of the United States. It authorizes the Secretary of the Treasury to cause the subsidiary silver of the United States which are abraded, worn mutilated, defaced or otherwise unfitted for circulation, or are of denominations for which there is no current demand, to be recoined into such denominations as may be required to meet the demands therefor. It provides that the loss incident to the recoinage shall be paid from the silver profit fund.

It is further provided that silver coins of less denominations than one dollar shall hereafter be a legal tender to sums not exceeding twenty dollars, in all payments of public or private debts, and when held by any National bank, may be counted as a part of its lawful reserve.

A correspondent of the Boston Herald invites attention to the fact of the slight importance of President Harrison in the government of the country at this period. He says that "never was the President's opinion, or his position as regards public affairs, so little considered. There is occasional reference to President Harrison, but it is always with a view to his attitude as regards the bestowment of some public office—the removal of a postmaster, the appointment of a collector, the judging between the claims of rival aspirants for a marshalship or an attorney's position. When the question is raised as to views upon the tariff, the currency, or foreign or domestic relations of any kind, no one quotes President Harrison, or speculates as to what his views may be. He is a President ignored by his own party, and seldom referred to by the other—a President, indeed, of less account in the Government, except in the matter of bestowment of office, than any one who ever sat in his place."

REGISTRATION.

How the Bill was Passed and Who Did it.

Some Names to be Remembered.

The Christian county registration bill was a special order in the House on the 8th inst., and brought on one of the hottest fights seen at Frankfort this year. Eleven o'clock was the hour for it to be taken up, but at that time Mr. Richardson had up a motion to adjourn Apr. 25 and in order to get that disposed of tried to postpone the special order. His motion to that effect was voted down by 37 to 28, and the registration bill was taken up.

Mr. H. B. Clark moved to re-commit the bill and proceeded to make a speech against the measure. He opposed it in a very vigorous style and his effort was a most creditable one although he failed to defeat the bill. He then asked that the bill be reported, but after the reading had gone on for some time withdrew his demand. It was then fully discussed by Messrs. W. M. Smith, G. W. Duvall, Claude M. Thomas, Arthur Wallace and others. The speech of the day was made by Mr. Smith, who made a strong plea for the passage of the bill, and his presentation of the state of affairs in Christian county brought the Democrats into line and many who had been wavering on the score of courtesy to the local member changed over and began working for the bill. Mr. Clark made speech after speech and appealed to the House to defeat the bill, which he denounced as expensive, troublesome and altogether unnecessary. His arguments lost their weight when Mr. Smith replied with a statement that there were 4,100 white and 2,800 colored voters in the county and that the 2,800 negroes, aided by 700 white Republicans, were in the habit of carrying the county by from 500 to 1,200 majority and that the present nominee for county assessor was a negro. This last statement was not believed until Mr. Clack himself was forced to admit it. Then Mr. Thomas took the floor and made a speech in favor of the bill that carried conviction in every sentence. He declared that the supremacy of the Anglo-Saxon race must be held paramount to any questions of courtesy and that the people of Christian county must be given a chance to protect themselves from floaters, repeaters and imported negroes from other counties and states.

The fourteen Republicans, led by Mr. Langley, saw that the only chance to defeat the bill was to filibuster, and began to kill time until the hour the for orders of the day should arrive at 12 o'clock. The orders of the day cannot be dispensed with except by a two-thirds vote and a failure to dispose of the bill by that time would let it drop into that graveyard of bills, the orders of the day. Mr. Able moved to dispense with the orders of the day and the motion carried by a scratch, 50 to 21, the Republican vote being swelled by ten Democrats who had measures in the orders of the day.

The filibusters then undertook to prevent action before the adjournment hour at 1:30 and piled in all sorts of amendments and dilatory motions and called the ayes and nays on all of them that came to a vote.

Mr. Clark moved to strike out "Christian" and insert "Graves" county. Rejected—yeas 15, nays, 54.

Mr. Bentley moved to amend by striking out the words "Christian county" wherever they occur in the bill and insert in lieu thereof, the words "each county of this Commonwealth." Rejected.

Mr. Langley moved to strike out the enacting clause. Rejected—yeas, 11, nays, 59.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

Mr. Welch, at 12:45 p. m., demanded the main question, which was ordered. Yeas, 61, nays, 12.

Mr. Langley moved to reconsider the vote by which the main question was ordered.

Mr. W. M. Smith moved to lay the motion to reconsider on the table. So ordered—yeas, 61, nays, 14.

Mr. Langley got the floor shortly after 10 o'clock and made a motion to adjourn till 1 o'clock Wednesday. The Republicans then sent up a half a dozen amendments putting the time at 10:05, 10:25, 10:45, 11:00, etc., with the intention of calling the ayes and noes on each and consuming the time till the arrival of 1:30 o'clock would drop the bill into the orders of the day and stop its consideration. Will Smith, Cox and Wallace passed the word around and when the roll was called the Democrats took the wind out of the Republican sails by adopting the amendment fixing the time furthest off, which Speaker Myers ruled should have precedence. Mr. Settle then moved to extend the session until the matter was disposed of, which was done, and the filibusters were given another black eye.

The bill was then put upon its passage. The Republicans, with two exceptions, refrained from voting, hoping to break a quorum, fifty-one votes being necessary to pass the bill. The first call resulted yeas 51, nays 2, and the victory was won. The absentees were then called and the Republicans cast their full strength and five Democrats who had dodged a vote went on the record, making the vote 58 to 14.

Norman, of Henderson, who had been called away suddenly, paired with Hillis, a Republican, but Mr. Hillis forgot the pair and voted and Dr. Norman had his name recorded the next day, as did also Messrs Welsh, Bruce and G. H. Gardner, who were called out during the fight to attend committee meetings and would have been sent for if their votes had been needed. Mr. Weil, of McCracken, was out of the city, but had his name put on the record when he returned Thursday. The vote as completed is here given in detail:

A RECORD FOR REFERENCE.

Yeas—Able, Bartman, Bailey, Bale, Beauchamp, Scott Brown, Blackerby, Bruce, Burns, Carpenter, Cooper, Counts, Cox, Crossfield, Davis, Braddy, Duvall, Flanary, Frazee, T. T. Gardner, G. H. Gardner, Garrison, Gay, Hardin, Hays, Hindman, Holland, James, Jenkins, Lotterle, Middleton, Moore, McClanahan, McClure, McDaniell, Nall, Norman, Palin, Potty, Robholz, Redwine, Richardson, Riley, Rudy, John Ryan, Settle, Sharp, Shouse, W. B. Smith, W. M. Smith, Stephenson, Terrell, Thomas, Thorne, Tomlinson, Wallace, Walker, Weil, Welch, Wickliffe, Wharton, Wolkiag, Womack.—63.

Present and not voting (all Democrats)—E. J. Green, of Kenton; Henry Kremer, of Louisville; J. J. Long, of Shelby; John W. Rowell, of Hart; M. D. Vanhoose, of Boyd.

Absent—Briscoe, Doc Brown, Croan, Hoertz, Hensley, Jolly, Kinkead, Mason, Muthews, May, McChord, Roberts, G. E. Ryan, Rep.; Tichenor, Triplett, Warren and Williams.

Mr. Speaker Myers of course had no vote.

The victory was promptly clinched by tabling a motion to reconsider and the house adjourned at 1:50 p. m.

THE FIGHT IN THE SENATE.

Early in the session Wednesday morning Mr. W. M. Smith brought the bill into the Senate as a committee of one from the House.

Senator Hendrick moved to refer it to the Committee on General Statutes, which then had the floor, the intention being to suspend the rules and pass it before adjournment.

Senator Lunsford, who opposed the bill, wanted it referred to the Committee on Propositions and Grievances, a majority of whom were against the bill. This of course would have been fatal to the measure. A vote was taken and Senator Lunsford's amendment was rejected, but on the vote upon the motion the opponents of the bill broke a quorum, only 15 Democrats standing up when a division was demanded. This threw the bill on the clerk's desk and that official, Mr. Glenn, promptly referred it to the General Statutes Committee, of which Senator Wright was chairman. It was acted on that night and was ready to be reported Thursday morning.

When the Senate met Thursday there were 31 Senators on hand, 26 Democrats and 5 Republicans. Of the 26 Democrats, 19 were heartily for the bill, 3 were non-committal and 4 — Hays, Hannah, May and McCann—were opposed to passing it over Senator Lunsford's protest. A quorum of 20 votes was necessary to pass the bill. This left the matter in a very doubtful condition and Senator Lunsford was sanguine of success in his efforts to defeat or indefinitely pigeonhole the matter.

Senator Wright called up the bill and made a telling and argumentative speech in its favor. He was followed by Senator Lunsford, who opposed it on the same grounds that Mr. Clark tried to defeat it in the House and wound up by making a personal appeal to the members to extend him the courtesy of not disregarding his wishes about a matter concerning his own district.

Senator Headrick warmly supported the bill and after paying a handsome compliment to Senator Lunsford proceeded to argue that the matter was one of too much importance, and the people of Christian county had too much at stake, for and mere question of courtesy to deprive them of a measure that they could not do without and hold honest elections.

Senator Hays, Dem., did most of the talking for Senator Lunsford. He made and supported a motion to print the bill and have it circulated for petitions and remonstrances in Christian county and made a special order for April 17th. While he was speaking Senator May was moving about the Senate chamber carrying on a whispered conversation with those who were not outspoken for the bill.

The ayes and noes were called and this motion defeated by 18 to 11, two not voting. Six Democrats voted with the five Republicans for postponement.

Senators Darby, Glenn and Berry then spoke for the bill and Senator Dickerson moved the previous question. Senator Hays made another motion to delay action, but the vote was then taken on the main question, the ayes and noes being demanded. This motion prevailed by 21 to 7, Senator May voting with the majority in order to enter a motion to reconsider. Senator Smith anticipated him in this and at once called the ayes and noes on a motion to table the motion to reconsider. May then went over to his crowd and the final vote stood:

HOW THEY VOTED.

Only one of the non-committals voted for the bill, but this accession saved it by giving it the exact number of votes needed. There was not one vote to spare. Senator English arrived from Louisville only the night before and Senator Darby had to postpone a case in the Court of Appeals to be on hand. Those absent were Mulligan, Newman, Patterson, Reynolds (who was in the city), Shearer, Rep.; Stowart, Rep., and Wortham.

THAT O. V. APPROPRIATION.

The appropriation of $5,000 of the people's money to the attorneys of the L. & N. railroad, for their services in having the O. V. bonds declared null and void, will raise a howl of indignation over the county. The people voted aid to the road and when a handful of malcontents took the matter into the courts, it was understood at the time that a guarantee fund of $300 to employ the attorneys had been raised by private subscription. This may or may not have been true. In April, 1889, after Judge Grace's adverse decision, the court of claims, or a part thereof, employed Feland, Stites & Feland to continue the case, without making a contract as to the fee. The case was gained and the $200,000 of bonds destroyed and the county lost the road with all its promised benefits. Now the people are forced to pay the bill. The fact that it is an outrage and a legalized robbery of the people is so palpable to the naked eye that comment is altogether unnecessary. The allowance itself seems to have been made by a bit of sharp practice. The subject had been postponed, nine justices had departed, and just before adjournment the question was re-opened and by a vote sustained by 11 of the 31 magistrates the job was put through. The attorneys demanded $10,000 and will refuse to accept the donation unless it be raised to $7,500. This will probably take the matter into the courts. Nobody blames the lawyers for wanting all they can get, but will the people stand it? That's the question.

The medical fraternity, backed up by carefully compiled statistics, is almost a unit in declaring that a moderate use of stimulants conduces to long life. It is also admitted that old whiskey is by far the best stimulant that can be used. Leading physicians recommend the I. W. Harper Whiskey, because it is pure, possessed of a superior flavor and bouquet, and is not offered for sale until it is old and thoroughly matured.

The Democrats of Christian county must give to the Hon. Will M. Smith the chief credit of securing the law looking to the purification of the ballot. Mr. Smith threw himself heart and soul into the fight and not only gave his own personal support and influence, but solidified the party as perhaps no other member could have done. He was ably assisted by Messrs. Wallace, Cox, Settle, Thomas and others, but our greatest obligations are to the gentleman from Graves. The work so well done by him in the House was taken up in the Senate by Hons. D. W. Wright, of Bowling Green; J. K. Hendrick, of Smithland; F. W. Darby, of Princeton, and other Senators who did no less effective service. These several gentlemen, and in fact all of those who helped us in the fight, will be remembered in the future by Christian county's 3000 Democrats.

RANDALL DEAD.

Sam'l J. Randall died in Washington Sunday morning aged sixty-two years. He was a great man and a Democrat, though of late years had not been in accord with the party on the tariff question. He had continuously represented in Congress a Philadelphia district since 1863. His health had been failing for some time. He is the ninth member of Congress who has died in fifteen months.

Deafness Can't be Cured

by local applications, as they can not reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that we can not cure by taking Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Rev. T. E. Tiller, paster of the Pembroke Baptist church, has returned from Thomasville, Ga., where he had been for some time on a leave of absence. He is very much improved in health.

The personal effects of Mr. H. G. O'Neill were sold under the hammer in Louisville last week. Many elegant articles were sacrificed at ridiculously low prices. The sale lasted for two or three days.

Claude Clark will probably open a general merchandise store at Belleview, the McGehee Bros. having decided to resume business at Gracey. This will keep the postoffice at Belleview from being discontinued for lack of a postmaster and office.

Rev. S. N. Vail, of Fort Wayne, Ind., preached to good congregations at the First Presbyterian church last Sunday morning and evening, and made a very favorable impression on his hearers. He will remain in the city this week and preach next Sunday morning and evening.

Papers are being circulated and Rev. John O. Rust will be petitioned by the entire membership of the church to accept the pastorate of the Baptist church. He recently notified the church that he could not accept if called, but it is hoped he may reconsider his determination.

J. R. Hawkins, the well known colored grocer who was recently burned out, has bought L. G. Williams' grocery on Ninth street and resumed business. He has a large trade and his friends, both white and colored, will be glad to know that he has made arrangements to resume business so soon.

C. M. Arnold, employed by the Sunday School Union, will spend three days in this county this week. Tuesday he will lecture at Crofton in behalf of the Sunday School work; Wednesday at Pembroke, and Thursday at the Methodist church in this city. He will be followed by five minutes speeches by several local speakers. All the schools of the city are invited, and the country schools are all urged to send representatives.

The Democratic party of Christian county must not make the mistake of nominating for Delegate to the Constitutional Convention any man who cannot get the united support of the party. To choose a man who made himself offensively conspicuous on either side of the recently settled railroad question would be more than a mistake. It would be a blunder that would stultify the party and jeopardize the success of the entire ticket. It would tear open old sores that should be allowed to heal as soon as possible and disrupt the party for years to come. Let us not make fools of ourselves on the eve of an important election. We cannot afford to do it.

Briefly stated the registration bill provides for a four day's registration in each precinct of the county, which comes this year on June 27 and 28 and July 4 and 5 for the August election. Each voter registered is given a certificate, which must be produced if his vote be challenged and which cannot be duplicated if lost. No voter who fails to register can vote. Four officers will conduct the registration, who will be paid each $1.00 a day. The expease will be about $150 and $250 additional on Congressional years, when a supplemental registration will be opened two days in October. The bill must be published one time in all the county papers the first week in next month.

PEMBROKE.

The Ladies Aid Society is in a flourishing condition. They are thinking of inviting Hon. John Young Brown (our next Governor) to lecture for them soon.

Policeman R. L. Moore had a very good squad in his "elmin gang" breaking rock on the streets this week. And still there are more to follow. Verily the way of the transgressor is hard.

The question of selling the present Baptist Parsonage and building a new one on the church lot is being agitated by the Ladies Aid Society. Members of the church so far as heard from seems to be in favor of it. It is a healthy and desirable piece of property and should bring a good price.

There is considerable diversity of opinion as to the probable yield of the growing crop of wheat. Some say fifty per cent. less than an average crop, some say twenty five per cent. less, while others say there will be an average crop made. That is hard to tell; but we must all confess that it has improved wonderfully in the last ten days.

Col. Thos. W. Porter had one of the finest dogs killed by the train yesterday that was ever brought to this country. He was a bull terrier and was presented by Mr. W. A. Lowry of your place.

Poor Jack is dead
The shining river he has jumped.
Tis said Tom said,
For by an engine he was bumped.

He was brave indeed,
A Consolidator to tackle
His master's voice he failed to heed,
So on his carcass the wheel did hackle.

Dr. J. M. Pendleton and wife have been on a visit to their many relatives here for several days. Dr. Pendleton preached two very able sermons at the Baptist church last Sunday moraing and evening. His congregations were large. His wife, though blind, is as cheerful, entertaining, and as bright as she can be. They go from here to Bowling Green for a few days, and then they will make a visit to their old home in Pennsylvania. Dr. Pendleton preached to some of these people here more than half a century ago.

Everything will be ready to start the new Deposit Bank July the first. The large brick house owned by Mrs. Holland has been purchased, and work on the vault will commence in a few days. I understand a large time lock safe has been contracted for. I have urged this matter for the last five or six years. We have the church and the Bank insured, now for the Merchants Flouring Mill and Graded School. The Pembroke Journal, which was issued in the interest of these four institutions, is still on file.

The town and community is almost unanimous for Tom Poore for Clerk of Court of Appeals. In the first place Judges say the office has been run better in the last few years, than it ever was run before. Then Tom Poore is from Southern Kentucky, hailing from Hickman county. It is high time Southern Kentucky was getting some of the offices. But the main reason that Christina county is so strong for Poore, is that our own Sam Gaines is to be Chief deputy. Sam Gaines is to-day the best Democrat in Christian county. Whenever we have had a fight to make, he has invariably come to our rescue; not only in State and County affairs, but even in the city elections at Hopkinsville. Jim McKenzie's friends feel that they can't do too much for Sam Gaines. He deserves the compliment. So let us all turn out en masse and do our duty. Poore first, last, and all the time.

President National Bank.

McMinnville, Tenn. writes: From experience in my family, Dr. H. Mozley's Lemon Elixir has few, if any equals, and no superiors in medicines, for the regulation of the liver, stomach and bowels. Dr. H. Mozley's Lemon Hot Drops are superior to any remedies we have ever been able to get for throat and lung diseases. W. H. MAGNESS, Pres. Nat'l Bank.

NOTICE—There is a fraudulent Lemon Elixir on the market—a whisky substitute, a Blind Tiger drink. See that you get Dr. H. Mozley's Lemon Elixir, an honest, reliable medicine.

Judge J. I. Landes returned from the meeting of Louisville Presbytery at Cloverport last Friday. During the meeting a very distinguished honor was conferred upon him, that of being elected as a delegate to the General Assembly, which meets at Saratoga on the 15th of May. The vote, on motion, was taken by acclamation, and there was not a dissenting voice. The election is a most worthy one, and is rarely enjoyed by an individual more than once in a life time. Rev. J. R. Collier, of Louisville, was the ministerial delegate chosen to the same body.

PRETTY MADAME MUTSU.

She Delights in Washington Society and Has Adopted Western Ways.

One of the most attractive ladies in Washington society is Mrs. Reijo Mutsu, the wife of the Japanese Minister. Her husband, a tall, slender man, with a full black beard, is a very accomplished gentleman, progressive in his ideas, and anxious to secure the adoption in his own country of every modern improvement that he finds here. In fact, all of the ministers Japan has sent to the United States have been men of the very highest social and intellectual rank, which may not be said of all the representatives this Government has had at the court of the Mikado. He speaks English imperfectly, but understands it well, and has around him a party of bright young men who are being educated in political economies, as well as practical economies, so as to become teachers and leaders in their own caste at home. Minister Mutsu presented his credentials about eighteen months ago, and has since taken an influential position in the diplomatic corps. He lives in a handsome house on N street, near Thomas circle, and entertains in a lavish manner.

Mr. and Mrs. Mutsu were married in 1871. Their beautiful daughter, Saiya (Onstancy) Mutsu, is about fifteen years of age, and is receiving her education in one of the fashionable schools of Washington. They also have two sons.

Mrs. Matsu has abandoned her picturesque native costumes, and her Western dresses are selected with great taste. Mrs. Mutsu is always robed in all the richness and taste of an adept in Western ideas of feminine toilets.

There are two ladies connected with the Corean Legation, the wives of the Minister and his first secretary. When they first arrived in Washington they were subjected to the restraints of the feminine discipline of their native land, but very soon asserted themselves sufficiently to attend with their lords at the fashionable drawing-rooms and receptions. The reception at the Corean Legation toward the close of the season was one of the finest entertainments of the kind given during the season, and the ladies, although wearing their curious native costumes, carried themselves with great ease and composure. When they first came they were placed in the hands of instructresses in the various branches of the household arts and accomplishments, and the piano and sewing machine were their chief delight. They have shown great aptitude in the acquisition of the English language. After official and general society had their curiosity well appeased quite a social issue sprung up respecting the marital status of the feminine members of the Corean Legation. The Corean representatives occupy a fine residence in a fashionable portion of the city and have become quite expert in Western ways.

Dr. Allen, the foreign secretary, who has had the legation in charge since the advent of Prince Pak and suite in January, 1888, has gone to Corea on important business, leaving the Minister and his secretary to run matters in their own way. The principal officials have acquired a ready supply of English words which enable them to make themselves understood, although they can not yet converse with ease upon profound topics.—Washington Cor. Chicago News.

HOW TO UNMARRY.

My grandfather used to tell an amusing story about an ignorant young couple in his parish. He had married them, but the marriage was a failure; they could not get on at all well together. They had vast, undefined ideas of what a rector could do, and it entered into their foolish minds that he might be able to undo their marriage. So they asked him whether he could not take them into church again and perform some service which would set them free, as they were before. The rector said, musingly: "Well, I think if you come to church I could put you in the way of becoming unmarried. Also, it is a curious kind of business, and instead of coming to the altar, as before, you will have to go into the belfry."

So the unhappy couple readily assented, and on an appointed time they went to the church, and the rector marched them into the belfry. "You see these two trestles," he said; "the husband will have to stand upon one trestle and the wife upon the other." Accordingly the husband, with much wonderment, stood on a trestle, and the wife did the same. "Now, each of you take a bell-rope in your hand." This was done. "Now, each of you tie the bell-rope round your neck and jump off, the trestle." "Lor', sir," said one of them, "we should be hanging ourselves." "Exactly," said the rector; "that is what I mean. The only way by which you can unmarry yourselves in church is by hanging yourselves in the belfry." —Reminiscences of a Literary and Clerical Life.

Pupee and Steel Car Wheels.

Talking with a well-known railroad man recently he told me that the paper car-wheel "must go," and is going as fast as possible. He characterized it as a "Pullman fad" which never had any thing like as much to recommend it as was claimed. The future car-wheel will be steel-tired, as are the locomotive drivers, the central portion iron as of yore. The tires will be run until they show signs of becoming grooved, when they will be planed to evenness again, as in the case of their larger congeners. Another interesting thing about car-wheels (of course those used in the passenger service only are referred to) is that the No. 5, or big wheel under the Pullmans and Wagners, is to be replaced by the No. 3, or smaller size. Various reasons are given for this change, greater safety and better resistance to wear and tear being the principal ones.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

Are Sparrows Able to Count?

Dr. Hagen, the entomologist of Harvard University, contributes to Nature his observation on this point: I was amused some years ago to observe the feeding of the young in a sparrow-house near an upper window of my house. The old sparrow alighted upon a small veranda of the sparrow-house with four living canker-worms in her beak. Then the four young ones put out their heads with the customary noise, and were fed each with a caterpillar. The sparrow went off, and after awhile returned again, this time, too, with four living canker-worms in her beak, which were disposed of as before. I was so interested and pleased with the process that I watched it for some time.—Youth's Companion.

PHONOGRAPH ORCHESTRA.

Reproduction of Choice Melodies Played Several Years Ago.

The reporter was ushered into the handsome dining-room of Henry G. Bishop, where the instrument (an Edison phonograph) and all its appliances were stationed. Mr. Bishop, with the skill of a person who had handled a phonograph for years, adjusted the instrument and turned on the battery. The various choice melodies which poured forth from the cone-shaped transmitter sounded very natural. Among the many selections were several pieces played by the Seventh Regiment band, of New York, about four years ago; a banjo solo, by a son of the mayor of Newburyport, Mass., played about a year ago; a cornet solo; several selections by a male quartet, and many other musical gems, most of which were played at Edison's laboratory over a year ago.

Mr. Bishop has so arranged his phonograph by the appliance of the cone-shaped transmitter that whenever he starts it going the sound can be distinctly heard throughout the whole house. Mr. Bishop has also recorded a few remarks of several prominent men of this city who have talked into the instrument. It is very amusing to listen with what accuracy they have been taken and are reproduced. He intends to have the Concordia Singing Society and Jerome May's Banjo Quartet give several selections at his home for the purpose of recording them. Mr. Bishop, it is understood, is the possessor of the only phonograph of this kind in the city. "Why," said he, "with this little machine I can sit down to my breakfast and listen to the concert of the Seventh Regiment band, played several years ago, and enjoy it as much as if I had actually heard the band itself." He is undoubtedly right. The working of this machine is something wonderful.—Bridgeport (Conn.) News.

THE BISHOP'S BLUNDER.

Here is a good story about a Bishop. Indeed, it would be a good story even about a Dean. Bishop was homeward bound from the States, travelling luxuriously in a double cabin with Mrs. Bishop. It was a very hot night, thunder in the air, and as the Atlantic liner slipped through the water, doing her eighteen or nineteen knots an hour, the cabin would be lit up with lightning flashes. Mrs. Bishops could not sleep for the heat. Bishops appealed to, lumbered out of his berth and opened a port-hole. Suddenly there bobbed in through the port-hole a wooden ball attached to a string. Bishop was perplexed, but he tied it up, coiling the string by a nail in the wall, and then retiring to rest. The ball was an apple of discord in that peaceful cabin, for it hit against the side of the vessel as she lurched, and Mrs. Bishop grew querulous and disturbed. Up started the poor Bishop again, and, to end matters, he uncoiled the cord, and put the ball safe and sound under his pillow. There was a heavy thunder-storm, but the Bishop slept soundly that night. Next morning at breakfast, the captain presiding, he told the tale with a good deal of Episcopal solemnity and detail. The captain laughed consumedly. Bishop laughed too, thinking his story a good one. Then the captain told him that the ball was the end of the lightning conductor. Bishop that night looked under his pillow before going to bed, and slept with a closed port-hole.—N. Y. Times.

A CHILD KILLED.

Another child killed by the use of opiate given in the form of Soothing syrup. Why mothers give their children such deadly poison is surprising when they can relieve the child of its peculiar troubles by using Dr. Acker's Baby Soother. It contains no opium or morphine. Remarkable Rescue.

Mrs. Michael Curtain, of Plainfield, Ill., makes the statement that she caught cold, which settled on her lungs; she was treated for a month by her family physician, but grew worse. He told her she was a hopeless victim of consumption and that no medicine could cure her. Her druggist suggested Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption; she bought a bottle and to her delight found herself benefited from first dose. She continued its use and after taking ten bottles, found herself sound and well, now does her own housework and is as well as she ever was.—Free trial bottles of the Great Discovery at H. B. Garner's Pharmacy, large bottles 50c. and $1.00.

Happy Hoosiers.

Wm. Timmons, postmaster at Idaville, Ind., writes: "Electric Bitters has done more for me than all other medicines combined, for that bad feeling arising from Kidney and Liver trouble." John Leslie, farmer and stockman, of same place, says: "Find Electric Bitters to be the best Kidney and Liver medicine, made me feel like a new man." J. W. Gardner, hardware merchant, same place, says: Electric Bitters is just the thing for a man who is all run down and don't care whether he lives or dies; he found new strength, good appetite and felt just like he had a new lease on life. Only 50c. a bottle at H. B. Garner's City Pharmacy.

My stomach and digestive organs were in a chronic state of disorder and my liver and bowels so torpid at times that I had to resort to the most drastic cathartics, which would always leave me in a delicate condition. I suffered from general debility and my whole system became deranged. Sick headaches and violent cramps in my stomach were common, as also frequent skin eruptions, and no woman suffered from the weaknesses of our sex as I did. I was under treatment of several physicians and also used a much advertised Sarsaparilla without the least apparent relief, but instead my health became worse. I reluctantly consented to try Bull's Sarsaparilla. The first dose convinced me it was stronger than any other and I felt a warmth through my whole system. Before I had finished my first bottle I began to improve. I have only taken five bottles, and now my appetite is splendid, my bowels regular, and my digestion as good as it ever was. My headache and other troubles have ceased and I am better than I have been for ten years.—Ann L. Cook, Mt. Vernon, Ind.

Peculiar
Many peculiar points make Hood's Sarsaparilla superior to all other medicines. Peculiar in combination, proportion, and preparation of ingredients, Hood's Sarsaparilla possesses the full curative value of the best known remedies of the vegetable kingdom. Peculiar in its strength and economy—Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only medicine of which can truly be said, "One Hundred Doses One Dollar." Medicines in larger and smaller bottles require larger doses, and do not produce as good results as Hood's. Peculiar in its medicinal merits, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures hitherto unknown, and has won for itself the title of "The greatest blood purifier ever discovered." Peculiar in its name, "good name hame," there is now but one sarsaparilla of Hood's Sarsaparilla sold in Lowell, where it is made, than of all other blood purifiers. Peculiar in its phenomenal record of sales abroad. No other preparation has ever attained such popularity in so short a time, and retained its popularity and confidence among all classes of people so steadfastly.

Dr. Warner's celebrated Coraline Health Corsets have one peculiarity which pertains only to corsets of their make. The bust retains its shape to the end, and the corset imparts to the wearer a well-proportioned and beautiful figure. The corset is boned with Coraline, a substance superior to the finest whalebone. Made in short, medium and extra long waists.

There are many imitations, but you will find "Dr. Warner's Coraline" printed on the inside of every genuine corset. They are sold by your nearest dry goods dealer.
